

Residents' Corner

When I Was A Young Man

By John P

When I was a young man, wall paint was better
A coke was a nickel and a pretty girl was mine
I used to go downtown with a coin in my pocket
To see a double feature for only a dime

Everyone stood when they sang for "Old Glory"
Only the men were sporting tattoos
They pumped your gas down at the station
While cheerfully cleaning the windows for you

New cars arrived every September
And every year they made a big change
I knew them all, far as I can remember
Though I must say that Edsel looked strange

Those were the good days etched in my mind
A collection of memories so intertwined
Now that I'm older, there's too much crime
The tax on my coke is more than a dime

The pretty girl's gone
She left in a huff
And ten bucks for a movie
Is still not enough

Dang

September is
